AGED RECLUSE DISAPPEARS FROM PALOS

Mrs. Fennel, aged recluse of Palos Park who has resided there practically all her life, has been reported missing from her home in the village and despite a thorough search for her by the county police, no trace whatever has been found of her.

She has been living alone for a long time and raised chickens and garden truck. She found a ready market for eggs and for sometime has had a Chicago family as steady egg customers. She quite frequently made trips to the city to deliver the eggs to her customers. When she failed to make her customary delivery of eggs to this family, they thought that perhaps she was ill, so recently they drove out to Palos to see her and were surprised when they found the door locked and there was no response to their raps.

The neighbors and other friends of the aged woman finally took the matter up with the county police and the officers forced entrance to the home, but found no trace of Mrs. Fennel. According to the story now making the rounds, the officers discovered two bank deposit books, one of which showed deposits of over $2900. It is a real puzzle as to what became of the missing recluse. The home did not show any signs of being disturbed so it is not that she might have been the victim of foul play, but the case is one hard to find a solution for.

Mokena Motor Sales Changes Management

Wallace Weichbrodt who has been connected with the Mokena Motor Sales garage located on Wolf Road in Mokena for a number of years, has severed his connections with this firm the past week. He will be connected with the A. C. Bauch Garage, Ford dealers in Frankfort, for whom he worked a number of years before becoming associated with the Mokena Motor Sales.

George Koeller, Jr., a former partner of Mr. Weichbrodt's in the Mokena Motor Sales, severed his connections with this firm several weeks ago and has opened a garage in New Lenox.

Ben Mager of Frankfort, of the firm of Heuser & Mager of that village, will take over the management of the Mokena Motor Sales.

Wolf Road Opened From 143rd North

The Wolf road extension in Cook County north from 143rd street has been given a top dressing of fine stone from 143rd street north to the Ford road near the canal. The Wolf road was to have been given a tar top, but the cold weather prevented this from being done, and this part of the road improvement will perhaps be carried out next spring.

The newly improved road is now open to traffic. There is a right of way matter still hanging fire so for the present there are several jogs in the road. The work is being done as a WPA project. This added improvement of Wolf road is bringing it a step nearer to the completion of an outer belt highway for Chicago.

Slippery Pavement Causes Accident

Slippery pavements last Saturday ditched quite a number of cars on the Lincoln Highway. The car of George Rinke of Mokena figured in a serious accident that night near New Lenox. The car had skidded and landed in a nearby ditch. The wrecker of the New Lenox Motor Service was called out and while engaged in pulling the ditched car back on the pavement, another car in trying to pass skidded and crashed into the wrecker ramming it into the Rinke car which was badly damaged.

In the Rinke car were Mr. and Mrs. George Rinke, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Heiman and Mrs. N. F. Heiman, all of Mokena. Mrs. N. F. Heiman was slightly injured.

Couple Hurt When Driver Loses Control of Auto

A new Ford V8 driven by an elderly man from Michigan was wrecked last Saturday afternoon east of New Lenox along the Lincoln Highway when the driver lost control of the car which ran off the pavement, plowed thru a fence, hit a telephone pole, then bounded into a concrete culvert. The car was badly smashed. With the man was his wife. Both were cut and bruised and were taken to a Joliet hospital for treatment.

This rare picture of the Church of the Nativity in Bethlehem shows the archway leading down to the grotto where the Christ Child was born 1900 years ago.

MRS. E. MARK OF FRANKFORT TAKEN BY DEATH

Mrs. Elizabeth Mark nee Heisner, was born in Koenitzwald, Germany, June 26, 1858 and departed this life Sunday morning, Dec. 6. In 1875 she came to this country settling in the township of New Bremen, Ill. In 1874 she was united in marriage with Conrad Mark. 10 children were added to this union, one of whom died in infancy. The greater part of her life was spent on the farm in the vicinity of Frankfort. After the death of her husband in 1902 she was compelled to face the battle of life alone. Her whole life was devoted to her family and church. She moved, 13 years ago, to Frankfort where she made her home for her two sons Henry and Frank. A little less than a year ago her son William also stayed at her home.

She was a member of the First Methodist church of Green Garden ever since she came to this country. About a year ago she had her church membership changed to the First Methodist church of Frankfort.

She was sincerely interested in the activities of the church and cheerfully bore her share of the responsibilities. She was a very dear friend to all her pastors and their families. Her loss is mourned by all her loved ones and friends. She is survived by her daughter Mrs. Bartel Heisner, of Frankfort, her sons, Paul, Henry, George, William, Charles, Frank, and Arthur of Frankfort and Conrad of Chicago. 10 grand-children, 3 great-grand-children, 1 sister-in-law, mother Ulrich of Green Garden. Funeral services were held from the First Methodist Church of Frankfort, Wednesday December 9 with the Rev. Otto Frey of Danville, Ill., and Rev. C. F. Shellhase officiating.

Tinley Couple Observe 15th Wedding Day

Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Bettenhausen who operate the popular Bettenhausen Hardware Store in Tinley Park, have been married 15 years and the event was celebrated by the couple at their home Thursday night when they entertained a company of 28 relatives and friends at a special dinner. The evening was spent in a social way.

Mr. and Mrs. Bettenhausen enjoy a wide acquaintance thru their daily contact with the public and Mr. Bettenhausen is strongly interested in all civic affairs of Tinley Park.

The many friends of this worthy couple wish them many more such happy anniversary events.

The following interesting item appeared in the New Port Richey, Fla. Press, concerning W. R. Lynk, well known former New Lenox and Mokena man:

"During the cool snappy days the first part of the week, practically everyone who claims to be an angler recorded fine catches of trout and redfish in the Pithlachascotee River, the most famous habitat of the finny tribe anywhere up and down Florida's renowned West coast, but it remained for H. E. Clark and W. R. Lynk, Isaak Waltonites of Eagle River, Wis., who are wintering here, to carry off the honors.

These gentlemen went out Monday, and, trolling in the mouth of the river, were successful in snaring twenty-one redfish, the largest of the catch tipping the beam at an even 6 pounds, with several others of three pounds or better. They used Drone spoons, and to hear them tell it, the only difficulty they experienced was in keeping the fish from totally destroying their spoons, tackle and all. Since that memorable day, they've had very little time for fishing, the greater part of their days being occupied by a recount, to friends who will listen, of their prowess on that occasion.

The Mokena fishermen are wondering why the big fish didn't swallow the boat.

Christmas Carols Featured at Tinley PTA Meeting

Opening with group singing of Christmas Carols, the regular meeting of the Tinley Park Parent-Teachers' Association was held on Friday afternoon, Dec. 4. It was decided to bring the World Books of the school up to date, and to inquire about having the pianos tuned. Mrs. Sandig announced that a WPA Library of two thousand volumes will be established in the schools. Mrs. Swisher read a very lovely poem which she had written in memory of Mrs. Alice Anderson. Mrs. Maxwell read very well a "Resume of a Mother's Letterto Santa Claus" and "Christmas Thoughts". Mrs. L. J. Morrison of Harvey, District Chairman of the P. T. A. was a guest of Honor and spoke a few words. The address was given by Mrs. W. F. Kral, State Chairman of the committee on Human Education. She gave a very illuminating talk concerning the affect on the character of the child and the wise choice of toys in character development. Miss Nelson's room had the most mothers present.

M. E. Pastors Asked To Take Part In National Appeal

Pastors of the Methodist Episcopal churches and World Service Representatives of Illinois received a pastoral message from Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf, of the Chicago Area, today, urging them to begin active participation in that denominations new national appeal, the Million Unit Fellowship Movement, launched several weeks ago. Bishop Waldorf is the chairman of the Committee of Direction for this new movement.

Frankfort Boys Shoot At Lights

For sometime Frankfort has been having a problem of young boys shooting air rifles within the village limits. Of late these youngsters have grown so bold as to shoot at the village street lights. Altho the village board has issued a warning a number of times against discharging fire arms in the village, it appears the warning has gone unheeded, but since the boys have started the old time wild west stuff or "shooting up the town" the village board is again taking action and once more is publishing a warning in this issue and if this goes unheeded some drastic action will be taken to abate the nuisance.

JOHN'S VISION ON PATMOS

LESSON TEXT—Revelation 1:4-18.

GOLDEN TEXT—Fear not; I am the first and the last: . . . behold, I am alive for evermore. Revelation 1:17, 18.

PRIMARY TOPIC—When John Saw Jesus Again.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jerusalem, the Golden.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Listening to the Ever-Living Christ.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Living Christ Among the Churches.

The first chapter of the Revelation, while it is an introduction to the entire book, is worthy of study by itself as a glorious revealing of Jesus Christ, his person and work. Some will wish to use the chapter as a preface to the study of the solemn and instructive messages to the seven churches of Asia which are found in chapters 2 and 3; but for most schools it will be better to concentrate on the messages of the chapter itself.

I. His Person.

While many of the characteristics of the Son of God are here presented, two are particularly emphasized.

1. His eternity (vv. 8, 11, 17).

In a world which understands but little of the meaning of its past, which lives in a badly befuddled present, and admittedly knows nothing of the future, it is a source of the deepest satisfaction and peace of heart to know and serve the One who "is and was and which is to come, the Almighty." He already "was in the beginning," and is to be through all eternity.

2. His glory (vv. 5, 13-16).

Jesus Christ is presented in verse 5 as "the faithful witness and first begotten of the dead," who is the ruler "over all the kings of the earth." The followers of Christ have a glorious captain and leader. The kingdoms of all the earth are his by right. Some day he will rule in fact and in person.

The infinitely beautiful description of our Lord in verses 13 to 16 is almost beyond interpretation. Have you seen him in his majesty and glory? The one who is "in the Spirit on the Lord's Day" can still see "him who is invisible" (Heb. 11:27).

II. His Work.

1. His victory (v. 18).

He died for our sins but "was raised again for our justification" (Rom. 4:25). We have not a dead, but a living Saviour. He has "the keys of death and hell." The one who follows a human leader parts with him at the grave. But he who follows Christ does not lose him when he passes over into the next world, for he is there, and he has the keys of all authority, not only in this world but also in that which is to come.

2. His love (v. 5).

How deep and rich was his love toward us. It sent him to the cross.

3. His redemption (v. 5).

He "washed us from our sins in his own blood." We read in Hebrews 9:22 that "without the shedding of blood there is no remission." The cults and creeds which deny or ignore the need of cleansing in the blood of Jesus Christ may be religious but they are not Christian.

4. His fellowship (v. 13).

The candlesticks are churches and the stars are God's messengers. They are not alone in the world; he is "in the midst." Do we recognize his presence?

5. His return (v. 7).

"Behold, he cometh with clouds." How can anyone read the New Testament and fail to see, and to teach and to preach the Lord's return?

He is coming again. What is our duty in the light of his coming?

a. To live lives of purity and Christian nobility. (Read I John 3:3, and compare vv. 1 and 2.)

b. To be diligent in sacrificial service. "Occupy till I come" (Luke 19:13) is the command of the one who "went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom and to return" (Luke 19:11).

Love of Nature

The presence of the love of Nature is an invariable sign of goodness of heart and justness of moral perception, though by no means of moral practice. When it is originally absent from any mind, that mind is in many respects hard, worldly, and degraded.—Ruskin.

A Wife

There is one name which I can never utter without a reverence due to the religion which binds earth to heaven—a name cheered, beautiful, exalted and hallowed—and that is the name of wife.—Bulwer.

Pride and Humility

Pride is not the heritage of man; humility should dwell with frailty, and atone for ignorance, error, and imperfection.—Sydney Smith.

Great Duties

Great trials seem to be a necessary preparation for great duties.—E. Thomson.

Ability and Opportunity

Where there exists honest ability there exists also real opportunity.—G. C. Golden.

NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington. — In proposing a peace pact for the western hemisphere, President

Wilson
Policies Fail

attention to two important positions that the United States has taken in its foreign relations. Whether Mr. Roosevelt so intended or whether it is by the very nature of the circumstance, he nevertheless has set up before the American people the necessity for re-examination of the age-old Monroe doctrine and has brought up for fresh scrutiny the policies of President Woodrow Wilson that were designed to establish eventually world peace by collectivist action.

I think that it must be admitted that the Wilson policies for international peace have not worked. Anyone who examines them squarely and frankly must recognize one outstanding inescapable fact: they have proved to be the illusions of an idealist.

They constitute a landmark, however, and in so doing it seems to me they should serve as a guide on what not to do. Candidly, the Wilson policies, beautiful in theory that they were, have been shown to be futile because they did not consider the perfidy nor the chicanery of European statesmen. They were predicated upon a belief that the world leaders were sincere in their desire for peace—and it is sad but true that such is not the case. In other words, the Wilson theories that were built up into a supergovernment to be called the League of Nations overlooked the element of human fallibility.

It requires only a brief review of the history of the League of Nations to reveal the definite conclusion that there is an absolute lack of sincerity on the part of the European statesmen. Each one has been concerned only with gains and advantages accruing to his own nation. His actions have been permeated to the core with selfishness, sometimes aggravated with desires for personal distinction. The league fell down in dealing with Russia's Stalin and Germany's Hitler. It took a mighty flop in the movement to check Italy's Mussolini in Ethiopia. Having flattened out, none of the three above mentioned has any respect for the league authority. When you add to this the absolute dismissal of the league as a world influence as was done by Japan, you have less than nothing left.

Mussolini said the other day that in order to straighten out the European tangle it would be necessary to wipe out all of the "Wilsonian illusions."

Wilsonian
Illusions

He could have referred only to the Wilsonian slogan upon which we entered the World War, namely, the "war to make the world safe for democracy." Later, it will be remembered, the World War was "the war to end war." Neither of these slogans bore fruit. Each was an illusion, a dream of world peace held by a great man whose only weakness in assuming world leadership was that he trusted other statesmen as he trusted the American people, to arrive at a sound conclusion and stick to it.

I am not prepared to say that the Wilson policies led us in a wrong direction. The fact remains, however, that the war that was to make the world safe for democracy led directly into destruction of democracy and the establishment of fascism and communism in various parts of the world as an important factor in the government of peoples.

All of this, of course, was not visible nor predictable at the time the policies were initiated. It is all too plain now, however, and that is why President Roosevelt can very well be governed in his new move with the Pan-Americans. He can proceed upon a Pan-American basis with at least a hope of success because it is quite apparent that the Americas, North and South, can protect themselves if arrangements for prevention of war relate only to the western hemisphere. International affairs will have to be considered, obviously. But among those authorities with whom I have talked about this problem, there seems to be little doubt that if the idea of collectivist action, first enunciated in the Wilson policies—is to avail anything, it must be applied not to the world but to a section of the world.

I noted in the official agenda, the program outline of the Buenos Aires conference, that no reference at all was made to the Monroe doctrine.

No Boss
Wanted

Apparently, that course had to be followed. The Monroe doctrine is a ticklish matter among our neighbors to the south. Frankly, they do not like it.

Considering all of the factors involved in the Monroe doctrine, there seems no conclusion ahead but eventual abandonment of that pronouncement. When I say that, I do not mean that the principles of the Monroe doctrine need be thrown into the ocean. Yet, the name has been the focal point around which much antagonism has been built up and the romantic Latin blood of South America can hardly be expected ever again to subscribe to the Monroe doctrine by that name.

What, then, is the course?

The Monroe doctrine, whether it was ever so intended, has placed the United States in a position where it is made to appear as a boss. No nation of people enjoys being bossed. So, if the Buenos Aires conference is to result in a definite understanding by which the peoples of the western hemisphere are welded together in an effective group, some understanding must be evolved which will replace the ill will engendered by the Monroe doctrine. Possibly, that understanding lies in the direction being followed by President Roosevelt. Apparently, he is willing to subordinate the Monroe doctrine and concede to those other peoples on behalf of the United States the end of our overlordship.

Undoubtedly, it will be a slow process. Present generations throughout the South American nations will be suspicious for a time and will move with caution but there are many who believe in eventual agreement among the western nations on a general policy that will keep us all out of European and Far Eastern entanglements to a greater extent than ever before.

The thing that may break down the apparent Roosevelt plan is the circumstance of drawn swords and cocked rifles in Europe at the moment. It is entirely possible that before concrete action among the North and South American peoples can be accomplished, explosions in Europe may take place. If they do, propaganda agents of the conflicting powers will be abroad instanter. Attempts will be made to alienate various nations in the western hemisphere, to align them with one side or the other in the European controversy. It may well be that this condition will ruin the Roosevelt program before it gets under way but a start has been made and succeeding generations will profit if the peoples of North and South America can come to regard themselves as an individual group that is willing to make sacrifices necessary to cut off European connections when the European statesmen insist on fighting.

There is yet one more thought concerning the South American sessions. There are students of international affairs who already are saying that history has repeated itself and that the United States has lost, as usual, in its diplomatic dealings. They are saying that the revision of the Monroe doctrine and the rebirth of that policy under a new name represents a gift by the United States. It may well be that such has occurred. But among saner minds, I believe the conviction is that the Monroe doctrine already has undergone so many alterations and revisions that a major operation on its structure will clarify the picture. The Monroe doctrine was designed originally, of course, to prevent European nations from gaining a foothold in either of the Americas. That danger is definitely past. Why, then, is it necessary to perpetuate an antiquated policy that has no purpose any longer? Thus, it seems to me that if a revision, even a casting out of the Monroe doctrine can eliminate suspicion of our government's purposes among those peoples inhabiting the same hemisphere, it is not too much to say.

There was a great banquet held at one of the hotels in Washington a few days ago. It is not unusual for great banquets to be held in the capital city but most of them are just banquets. The one to which I refer, however, had a significance that is quite unusual. It commemorated the establishment of the United States patent office and celebrated its one hundredth birthday.

Something like eleven hundred inventors, research scientists, representatives of industry and patent office officials entered the great dining room by candlelight. Then, the toastmaster waved a wand over one of the greatest inventions of modern times and the room was bathed in an electric brilliance the like of which has never been seen. The action typified, told the story of, scientific development in the United States and elsewhere.

Very, Very Cold

By VIRGINIA WOODALL
© McClure Newspaper Syndicate,
WNU Service.

STANFORD G. BROWN dictated with half-closed eyes: "Her beauty was colder and purer than the snowy landscape. Chiseled as in marble, her features were given warmth by a pair of richly blue eyes in which burned the embers of a fire. Clifton longed to stir it into a flame that would melt . . ."

Little-Bit (officially titled Mary McCarthy) lifted the pencil from her shorthand notebook and then frowned. "Stan! I thought . . ."

"Yes?" He opened his eyes.

"Well, I thought you'd find a new type of heroine for this story—one with some life. You've used this chiseled female for every yarn you've written lately."

"H'mm. She's so—so perfect, I don't see any use in changing her," he protested. "If I could meet a woman with her cold, classical loveliness—I'd marry her!"

Little-Bit bent over the notebook again. "Go on."

"The Seventh Cockatoo" with, or in spite of, its marble heroine, became a best seller—Stan's first successful novel. He became, in consequence, a local celebrity, attended a tea party in Milwaukee, and was introduced to this cold heroine in the flesh. Three weeks later, in the musty drawing room of the Van Guise home, he rounded off his impassioned courtship and was accepted by Lisbeth Van Guise.

Lisbeth began to make him over according to her own specifications. On her initial visit to Stan's rooms, she looked only once at Little-Bit's brown eyes and red lips.

"These rooms are terrible," she said then, indicating the shabby furniture.

"I'll move," Stan agreed promptly.

"And you really need an efficient secretary. A man, perhaps."

Three months later, Stan was thinking of Little-Bit as he gazed up at the tall, exclusive apartment building into which he had moved.

For long weeks he had lived in the apartment with a mahogany desk, and there wasn't a line written on the second novel Lisbeth insisted he finish before their marriage. Something about the new place gave him the fan-tods.

A snowdrift tempted his unwary foot, burying it up to the ankle. Unwarrantably angered by the mishap, he halted and was considering kicking the snowdrift when—wham!—a snowball caught him behind the left ear, knocking off his hat.

Turning quickly, he glared at the small boy who was vanishing around the corner. A matter of seconds later, with two snowballs ready made, he had taken up a stance. The psychology of small boys always dictated their getting a second look at their victims and when this boy appeared . . .

Stan's arm shot forward. Before the icy missile struck, he recognized his error. It was a girl, not a boy, coming around the corner—and not just a girl either. It was Lisbeth Van Guise!

He ran toward her with shouted apologies. Brushing the snow from her face, she silently refused his proffered handkerchief.

"I'm sorry! I didn't mean it for you. A kid threw one . . ."

"A stupid, vulgar trick!" She closed her vanity. "We won't discuss it further. The doorman told me where to find you. I've brought you your new secretary."

"Oh—Snockleberry! I'll give him a try and . . ."

"Please, Stanford. Don't call Monsieur Roque de Barrie—Snockleberry. After all, he is a gentleman even if he does need a position."

Stan felt himself growing stubborn. "I've got a job," he said. "I'm not offering a position. I need somebody to work like—Little-Bit."

"Monsieur de Barrie cannot be classed with your—Little-Bit. He is a man of culture, widely traveled, a linguist; He will be able to polish your writings into the finest prose."

Stan thrust his hands into his coat pockets. "You tell Snockleberry the job is taken. I don't need him. I'm going to get Little-Bit back—if she'll come."

"In that case," Lisbeth's eyes were calculatingly cold, "you don't need me."

"No! Take a tip from me: You can rope some men in with your cold, cold beauty but if you don't warm up, you can't keep 'em. You . . ."

Twenty minutes later Stan was established in the middle of Little-Bit's one room apartment, waving his arms at her. She was listening, seated before her typewriter, and refusing to return to his employ.

"You'll find another live replica of your iceberg heroine in a couple of weeks—and I'll be out on my ear again. Nothing doing. You need a man secretary."

He put a pencil into her hand and took a notebook from his pocket. "Take dictation, please. Her warm brown eyes shone with eagerness; her soft lips, red and sweetly yielding, met his in a kiss of surrender. 'Yes, I'll marry you,' she whispered. . . ."

Little-Bit held up her arms. "You mean 'Gimme more,'" she whispered.

These Cuddle Toys
Solve Gift Problems

"Eenie, Meenie, Minie, Mo"—it's hard to decide which to make—but why make just one, why not all! Delightful cuddle toys, these, and just the soft, warm playthings for a baby's arms. There's nothing to the making of them, for each is composed of but two pieces, with the exception of the bear, whose jacket is extra, and the chick, whose flapping wings are separate. Your gayest cotton scraps can go into the making of these winning gifts. In pattern 5609 you will find a transfer pattern for the four animals; instructions for making them; material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 15 cents in stamps or coins (coins preferred) to The Sewing Circle Household Arts Dept., 259 West Fourteenth St., New York, N. Y. Write plainly pattern number, your name and address.

The Cop Had a
Test for the Cowboy

A hard-driving taxi driver, in a mid-west city ignored a red crossing signal, threatened the traffic policeman's knees, missed a street island by a hair, and just grazed a loaded bus, all in one mad dash.

The policeman hailed him with a shrill blast from his whistle, then strolled over to the taxi, pulling a big handkerchief from his hip pocket en route.

"Listen, cowboy!" he growled, "on the way back I'll drop this and see if you can pick it up with your teeth while in full tilt. If you're the real thing, O.K. Else you get a ticket!"—Montreal Star.

AT LAST
A COUGH RELIEF—THAT
ALSO SPEEDS RECOVERY

Remember the name! It's FOLEY'S HONEY & TAR! Double-acting. One set of ingredients quickly soothes, relieves tickling, hacking, coughing . . . coats irritated throat linings to keep you from coughing. Another set reaches the bronchial tubes, loosens phlegm, helps break up a cough due to a cold and speeds recovery. For quick relief and speeded-up recovery, ask your druggist for double-acting FOLEY'S HONEY & TAR. Ideal for children, too. Get a bottle today!

Watch Your Kidneys!

Be Sure They Properly
Cleanse the Blood

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as nature intended—fail to remove impurities that poison the system when retained.

Then you may suffer nagging backache, dizziness, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, puffiness under the eyes, feel nervous, miserable—all upset.

Don't delay! Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are especially for poorly functioning kidneys. They are recommended by grateful users the country over. Get them from any druggist.

American Ship Wrecked on Rocks of Cornwall

The remains of the steamship Bessemer City firmly fixed on the rocks off the coast of Cornwall after heavy seas broke it in two. The ship went aground in a fog, and quickly went to pieces under the pounding of the ocean. All of the crew were rescued, being taken off by the St. Ives lifeboat. The Bessemer City is—or was—an American boat, having sailed from New York on her last trip.

WHY THE PLANS OF THE RATS FAILED.

YOU remember that the rats in the big barn had agreed that if Billy Mink should return they would all attack him at once and kill him or frighten him so that he would leave and never return. It was a perfectly good plan. Billy was more than a match for any single rat. He might be more than a match for any two rats. But if he had to fight all the rats at once he wouldn't have the smallest chance in the world.

All those rats had been very bold and brave when they had met to plan how they should get rid of this new enemy. Especially bold and brave had been the younger rats. They had agreed that the instant they heard the signal they would rush to do their part in the attack on Billy Mink. Only the wise, gray old leader had been doubtful. He had not let the others know that he was doubtful, for this would not have done at all.

They Were Crazy With Fear and Gave Him No Heed.

But he knew what the younger rats did not know, which was that born in every rat is great fear of all members of Billy Mink's family, a fear so great that when it is aroused all else is forgotten. He knew that such fear becomes terror and terror destroys courage. It makes cowards of even those who are thought to be brave. So the gray, old leader was doubtful, and that doubt increased the fear which the very thought of Billy Mink filled him with.

Now the gray, old leader was not a coward himself. He would never have become a leader if he had been a coward. When he heard that danger signal he scrambled out of the nest where he had been taking a nap and hurried forth to lead his tribe in the great fight they had planned. Almost at once he met one of the loudest boasters among the younger rats, and this fellow was running in the opposite direction from the way he should have been going. More than this, he was squealing with fright. Then another and another and still another raced frantically past, each squealing with fright. He could not stop them. They were crazy with fear and gave him no heed.

Antelope Turban

In all directions he could hear frightened squeaks and squeals and the scampering of many feet. He knew then that that which he had most feared had happened. The mere presence of Billy Mink had awakened that inborn fear, and each rat was thinking only of himself and how he could escape. Sadly the old leader turned and fled to save his own life. He knew that their plans for getting rid of Billy Mink had failed, and that he never would be able to make these followers stand and fight.

CHRISTMAS GOODIES

IT would be a sorry time for young or old if the Christmas candies were forgotten for the holiday time.

Coffee Fondant

Take two and one-half pounds of sugar, one and one-half cupsful of boiling water, one-fourth cupful of ground coffee. Heat the coffee and water to the boiling point, boil for five minutes, then strain through a double cheesecloth. Add the sugar to the coffee infusion and one-fourth of a teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Boil to the soft ball stage when tested in cold water and pour out on a lightly oiled or buttered slab or platter. When cool enough to handle stir with a wooden spoon until creamy, then knead until smooth. Set away for 24 hours in a bowl well covered with waxed paper. Now the fondant is ready to make into patties by melting over hot water; made into bonbons and decorated with a nut or cherry, or chopped fruit and nuts may be added and form into small bricks; slice and wrap in paper.

Maple fondant may be made in the same way using one and one-fourth pounds of maple sugar, one and one-fourth pounds of granulated sugar, one cupful of boiling water and one-fourth teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Work and ripen as for plain fondant.

Bonbons

The centers of bonbons are made of fondant of any flavor, shaped into small balls and dipped into chocolate or melted fondant, colored. For coconut centers work as much coconut as possible into the fondant, roll in coconut if desired. For nut centers cover a whole nut meat with the fondant. Allow these nut balls to harden, then dip in chocolate or any desired dipping mixture. Use

GIVE WHERE THE GIFT IS MUCH

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THIS is the joy of living,
The joy that will joy remain,
The joy that we get from giving,
Not the joy that we get from gain.
A hand that will lift the lowly,
A purse that will meet the need—
These make our Christmas holy,
Make it Christ's day indeed.

This is the Christmas season;
Make it a time of joy
For those who have little reason,
Woman, or babe, or boy.
Friend to the friendless stranger,
Look for some pain to ease.
The Christ that lay in a manger
Was even as one of these.

This is the joy of living,
The joy that will joy remain:
The joy that we get from giving,
Not the joy that we get from gain.
If in your midst are any
Wanting a kindly touch,
Give where the needs are many
A gift where the gift is much.

THE LANGUAGE OF YOUR HAND

By Leicester K. Davis
© Public Ledger, Inc.

AFTER you have studied a few thumbs and have applied the principles set forth in these lessons, you will understand why the expert hand analyst relies so much on this element of the hand as his gauge of temperamental qualities.

Characteristics of the Thumb.

The thumb always denoted those qualities of the personality which concern the temperamental reactions of the individual to the influences and environments which mold his or her life.

The first, or nail, joint indicates the degree and type of the will; the second, or middle joint the powers of logic and analysis; the third, or palm joint nearest the palm, and to the underside of which is attached the large rounded muscle which regulates the movements of the thumb, the amount and quality of the affections.

The length and shape of these members are accurate in denoting the attributes just named. The position of the thumb itself is also of great importance. Its separation from the rest of the hand when in repose holds, as you shall later see, much that indicates generosity or the reverse as the case may be.

The thumb tells us clearly of the unfavorable qualities of will or logic which should and can be corrected.

Institution of Nobility

The institution of nobility is founded on the theory that a special privilege, once acquired, shall be passed on from generation to generation. The nobles of Rome, called patricians, became nobles simply because they were the original inhabitants of the city. In Venice, the nobility consisted of a group of merchant traders who had gradually risen in wealth and power. Most of the nobility of Europe, on the other hand, came from freemen who battled their way to wealth and privilege. These great feudal lords were virtual kings.

Several Standby Designs

SEWING CIRCLE fans will get a "lift" out of this week's selection of dapper designs for home sewing. It's not a bit too early to be anticipating your first-of-the-year requirements and each frock here presented is a veritable winner in its individual class.

The cleverly cut slip, Pattern 1909, consists of just six simple pieces to the pattern, it too offers strap and offers a choice of straps or a built up shoulder. With a combination of bust ease and a fitted waist, this number will prove a popular favorite in silk crepe, crepe de chine, pongee, or taffeta. An excellent gift for an intimate friend, by the way, the pattern is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46. Size 16 requires 2 1/4 yards of 39 inch material.

The slick princess frock, Pattern 1931, has everything it takes for success and—you'll hardly believe it, but it's so—requires just seven pieces for the pattern. Princess frocks are always tops for home sewing, and whether for campus, business, or general gad-about wear this clever number, with a choice of long or short sleeves, simply compels admiration and demands immediate attention. The sleeves are gay and tricky. Your selection of fabrics is almost as long as the counter!—wool crepe, flannel, broadcloth, velveteen, silk crepe, satin, taffeta, linen, rough weaves, or cotton. Send today for Pattern 1931 designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42. Size 16 requires 3 1/4 yds. of 54 inch or 5 1/2 yds. of 39 inch fabric.

The charming morning frock for matrons, Pattern 1841, speaks for itself. A one-piece model, five pieces to the pattern, it too offers a choice of long or short sleeves and slides through your machine in a jiffy. A perfect number for comfort combined with a pleasing appearance, this delightful pattern is available in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46. Size 36, with short sleeves, requires 3 3/4 yards of 39 inch material—percale, rayon, poplin, gingham, tub silk, or seersucker.

Send for the Barbara Bell Fall and Winter Pattern Book containing 100 well-planned, easy-to-make patterns. Exclusive fashions for children, young women, and matrons. Send fifteen cents in coins for your copy.

"Quotations"

Fashions are inseparable from manners; manners from morals; morals from spiritual ideals.—Emily Post.

The right mental attitude has a lot to do with a long life.—De Wolf Hopper.

Mastery over self is not readily won; it is a life-work.—Cardinal Hayes.

Art creates what is not and science only discovers what already is.—Albert Einstein.

It is good for us, every now and then, to see our ideals laughed at.—Aldous Huxley.

You can keep young if you take your blows with your chin up.—Irene Rich.

Men live far more by the imagination than by the body or the senses.—Guglielmo Ferrero.

The young man of today will tomorrow be the old man of whom he is so critical.—Havelock Ellis.

But Not a Pair

"Look at those cows, Miss Jones! Aren't they lambs?" "Yes, perfect ducks!"—Pearson's Weekly.

A Reminder

The successful man was lecturing to an admiring audience.

"I must say," he concluded, "that I owe everything I have to my wife."

"Hey!" shouted a tradesman at the back of the hall, "you're not forgetting my bill, are yer?"—Grit.

"It's raining cats and dogs outside."

"I know—I just stepped into a poodle."

Terrific Strain

A very young boy reported for the prep school football team. The coach, learning his age, told him to "come back when he was older."

Several weeks later the lad was back. "I told you not to come back until you were older!" said the coach.

"I know, sir," was the retort, "but seeing the team play last Saturday puts years on me!"

Insane Monarchs

Europe had more insane monarchs in power during the last half of the Eighteenth century than in any other similar period in its history. During this time nine of them mounted the throne of seven countries. An interesting one was Abdul Hamid I, who reigned over Turkey from 1773 to 1779, writes Alan B. Cox, New York city, in Collier's Weekly. Before he was made sultan, Abdul had been locked in a cage for 43 years.

Length of Suez Canal

The actual length of the Suez canal is about 100 miles, a little more or a little less, depending upon the way in which it is measured. Reference books do not agree as to its exact length.
The discrepancy lies in the fact that it may be measured from the southernmost end of Port Said harbor to the northeastern shore of Suez bay at Port Tewfik, or from the De Lesseps statue sultan, Abdul had been locked in a cage for 43 years.

Das Xmas Business

For viele das Christmas zeit kommt
gar too soon,
Aber fuer die stores, das ist ein big boom.
Diese marchants sind busy, nun vas
ist der cause?
Der reason — Sie glauben in Santy
Claus.

Herr Hick der wohnt in unser town,
Ein butcher ist, of great renown,
Er macht viel profit during holidays.
Das Butcher business sag er, "pays",
Er verkauft viel chicken und turkey
claws,
Darum glaubt er noch on Santy
Claus.

Der hardware man, der ist astute,
Sein Christmas stock ist immer gut.
Das harvest zeit ist Christmas time
Und hardware business ein feiner line.
Er selled viel hammers und planes
und saws,
Darum glaubt er auch on Santy
Claus.

Der barber in dem barber shop.
Er schneidet auch ein Christmas crop.
Das Christmas business ist ein
grand rush,
Kein time hat er to clean das brush,
Cutting and shaving die necks and
jaws,
Darum glaubt er auch on Santy
Claus.

Herr Vogt und Herr Funk in das grocery line
Vogt verkauft auch sox und ties
galore
Aber Funk hot keine in sein grocery store.
Prices sind based on demand und
supply laws,
Und die beiden glauben auch on Santy Claus.

Unser druggist, nun, da stht ein
feiner man,
Und ist auch ein red hot Christmas
fan,
Sein store ist open early und late
Und ist gut gestockt with Christmas bait.
Er verkauft toilet goods, cigars,
medicines und gauze,
Und er glaubt auch on Santy Claus.

Herr Henke der feed man, koennen
wir nicht vergessen,
Das live stock das mus auch on Xmas fressen.
Fuer das feed und grain wird er
gut gepaid,
Und jedes jahr hatte er ein increase in trade.
Sein business geht immer on without pause
Und er glaubt auch on den Santy
Claus.

Nun lezte der dentist, der armer
trapf,
Around Christmas time pulled er
kein tooth aus dem Kopf,
Die patients haben um Christmas
kein money dofuor,
Aber spenden viel geld fuer das
holiday cheer,
Er kriegt nicht paid fuer fixing die
jaws,
Und darum glaubt nicht on Santy
Claus.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"God the Only Cause and Creator" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, December 6.

The Golden Text was, "I am the Lord that maketh all things; that stretcheth forth the heavens alone; that spreadeth abroad the earth by myself" (Isaiah 44:24).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Bless the Lord, O my soul. O Lord my God, thou art very great; thou art clothed with honor and majesty. Who coverest thyself with light as with a garment; who stretchest out the heavens like a curtain; who laid the foundations of the earth, that it should not be removed forever"
(Psalms 104:1, 2, 5).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook,
"Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy:
"God is individual, incorporeal. He is divine Principle, Love, the universal cause, the only creator, and there is no other self-existence. He is all inclusive, and is reflected by all that is real and eternal and by nothing else" (p. 331).

VILLAGE ORDINANCE No. 293

AN ORDINANCE FIXING THE RATES AND REGULATING THE USE OF WATER SUPPLIED BY THE WATERWORKS SYSTEM IN THE VILLAGE OF MOKENA, WILL COUNTY, ILLINOIS.

BE IT ORDAINED by the President and Board of Trustees of the Village of Mokena, County of Will and State of Illinois, as follows:

SECTION 1. That, for all purposes that Village water may be used or may be applied for, meters only shall be used as have the approval and be under the control of the President and Board of Trustees of the Village of Mokena, Illinois.

SECTION 2. The charge for water measured and registered by meters shall be twenty seven cents (27c) per one thousand (1000) gallons for the first twenty-six thousand (26,000) gallons, twenty-two cents (22c) per one thousand (1000) gallons for the next twenty thousand (20,000) gallons, and seventeen cents (17c) per one thousand (1000) gallons for all water used in excess of forty-six thousand (46,000) gallons.

The minimum charge for water consumed shall be the sum of One and 75-100 (1.75) Dollars for a term of three (3) months.

SECTION 3. Water rates are payable quarterly at the office of the Village Treasurer and shall fall due on the first day of January, April, July and October of each year.

SECTION 4. No person, firm or corporation shall be permitted to tap or make any connection with the distributing pipes of the watermain system of the Village of Mokena, unless duly authorized by the President and Board of Trustees of the Village of Mokena or some person or persons designated by the President and Board of Trustees of the Village of Mokena.

SECTION 5. Any person who shall make any connection with the distributing pipes of the watermain system of the Village of Mokena, shall within three days after the completion of the work and before replacing dirt in the trenches, notify the Chairman of the Water Committee in order that the work done may be inspected and approved by the Water Committee. Any faulty work done shall be made satisfactory to the Committee. When the work done has been approved by the Committee, the trenches shall be immediately re-filled and the dirt well tamped and the street flagging and sidewalk restored to as good condition as previous to excavation.

SECTION 6. Each building shall have a separate stop cock and buffalo box at the curb line; not more than one building shall be supplied by one service pipe nor shall more than one building be supplied by one water meter, and all services shall be at least three and one-half (3½) feet below the surface of the ground.

SECTION 7. Persons taking water must, at their own expense, keep their service pipes, service cocks, water meters, and apparatus in good repair, protect them from frost and prevent all unnecessary waste of water.

The consumer of water shall be responsible for all repairs of whatever nature from main into and including premises.

The consumer will install and maintain these pipes, valves, boxes, etc., from main into and including premises.

Copper piping must be used from main to service box (Minneapolis pattern) on all new connections and on all taps that will be installed in the future when dug up for repairs, leaks, etc.

SECTION 8. Water meters will be considered out of repair when they are under-registering to an extent of at least five per cent. Whenever any meter, service pipe, service cocks, appliances or apparatus on private premises shall be out of repair, the same shall be repaired by the consumer on notice given by the Village authorities.

SECTION 9. The Village of Mokena requires that all water consumed shall be measured through a meter and no measures will be permitted to use water unless a meter of a make approved by the President and Board of Trustees of the Village shall have been first installed. All meters shall be connected with standard brass unions and sealed. All meters hereafter be thoroughly sealed by the Village so as to prevent any tampering with same. No person, unless properly authorized shall connect, disconnect, remove, repair or otherwise disturb any water meter, and any person who shall violate the provisions of this section shall be subject to a fine upon conviction of not less than Three (3) Dollars nor more than Fifty (50) Dollars for each offense. SECTION 10. Consumers of water, shall at all reasonable hours, permit such person or persons who may be designated by the President and Board of Trustees of the Village to enter their premises for the purpose of inspection and to examine and test meters and fixtures. If access is refused the supply of water may be cut off without further notice.

SECTION 11. Any applicant desiring to be supplied with water by the Village of Mokena, in any building, house or other premises, shall in addition to all other charges herein required to be paid, deposit with the Village Clerk the sum of $5.25 to be retained by the Village as a guaranty for the payment of all water rates or charges thereafter accruing against such applicant for water furnished by the Village, said sum of $5.25 to be returned by the Village Clerk to such applicant upon the Village ceasing to furnish water to such user, providing that all bills rendered for water used up to the time the Village ceases to supply water shall have been paid, the Village having the right to deduct any unpaid water rents or charges from such deposit.

SECTION 12. Any person who shall turn on the supply of water to any premises from which the supply of water has been turned off on account of non-payment of water rent, or for any other cause turned off by the Village, without having obtained a permit to do so from the proper village officers shall be subject to a penalty of not less than Three (3) Dollars nor more than Fifty (50) Dollars.

SECTION 13. There shall be a charge of One (1) Dollar for turning the supply of water off and in all cases of violation of any or either of the sections of this ordinance resulting in the shutting off of the water supply a charge of One (1) Dollar shall be made before the water supply is turned on.

SECTION 14. In case there shall be a dispute over the amount of a bill or over the accuracy of a meter, the Village, will, at the request of the consumer test the meter. If it is found upon such test that the meter registers a greater amount of water than has actually passed through it, the bill will then be adjusted to conform to the amount passing through the meter and no charge will be made for the test. If, however, the meter registers a less amount than actually passes through it, the consumer will be required to pay on the basis of the amount passing through the meter and an additional charge of One (1) Dollar to cover the cost of making the test.

SECTION 15. All water bills not paid within the first thirty days of any quarter shall be deemed delinquent and the Village Treasurer shall thereupon deliver to the Chairman of the Water Committee of the Village a complete list of such delinquent bills. The chairman of the Water Committee shall thereupon cause the water supply of such persons to be shut off.

SECTION 16. Whoever shall in any manner obstruct the access to any stop cock, hydrant or valve connected with any water pipe in any manner or whoever shall park any automobile or vehicle within ten (10) feet from any hydrant in said Village of Mokena shall be subject to a penalty of not less than Five (5) Dollars nor more than Fifty (50) Dollars for each offense.

SECTION 17. No person shall willfully or carelessly break, deface, mar, injure, interfere with or disturb any building, machinery, apparatus, fence, fixtures, well or its attachments, reservoir, water tower or any appurtenances of the water system of the Village of Mokena or any public or private hydrant, stop cock box, shut off valve, service pipe, nor shall any person deposit anything in any stop-cock box without the permission of the President and Board of Trustees of the Village or some person or persons authorized by the President and Board of Trustees of the Village.

SECTION 18. Hydrants, taps, hose, water closets, urinals, baths and other fixtures shall not be permitted to be kept running when not in actual use.

SECTION 19. There shall be an accounting record, showing all receipts and disbursements pertaining to the water department.

SECTION 20. This Ordinance shall be in full force and effect from and after its passage, approval and publication according to law.

SECTION 21. All Ordinances or parts of Ordinances in conflict herewith or any section hereof are hereby repealed.

Passed this 1st day of December, A. D. 1936.

Paul J. Roesener, Village Clerk
I hereby approve the above and foregoing Ordinance this 1st day of December, A. D. 1936.

Edw. Martie
President of the Board of Trustees

Attest:
Paul J. Roesener,
Village Clerk.

A Phantom in the Herd

Live stock prices may rise or fall sharply without your knowledge unless you keep in touch with buyers by telephone. The added profit you may make on a shipment of cattle, by locating the best available price by telephone, could easily amount to the price of one more animal. One farmer, for example, marketed thirty thousand pounds of cattle at what he guessed was the best price. Had he telephoned for market information he would have made $600 more. It pays, in dollars and cents, to have a farm telephone.

MOKENA

Miss Alva Hall entertained at a miscellaneous shower in her home last Friday evening in honor of Mrs. Louis Stanger, formerly Miss Marie Tierney. Airplane bunco was played with prizes being awarded which were presented to the honored guest. Many lovely gifts were given to Mrs. Tierney. Luncheon was served to the twelve guests at one long table at which the guests were seated by place cards. Lighted candles were used as table decorations.

Mrs. Hugo Neithammer entertained a group of little folks in her home last Saturday afternoon in honor of her daughter Audrey and her third birthday. Games were played and refreshments were served. All enjoyed a happy afternoon.

Mrs. Rene Guindon entertained in her home Saturday afternoon at a birthday party in honor of her daughter Lois. Games were played and refreshments were served. All had a pleasant time. Lois was ten years old.

Willard Marti entertained recently at a birthday in honor of his daughter, Joan and son Jack. The usual little folk games were played and refreshments were served.

Mrs. Wm. Semmler and Mrs. Hugo Neithammer spent a delightful afternoon last Friday in the St. Charles, Ill., Country Club, as guests of State Representative, Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill at a luncheon given by the officials of the DuPage County Republican Organization.

Mrs. Barney Hostert entertained the 500 Club in her home Wednesday afternoon.

day afternoon.

Mrs. Georgia McGovney, mother of Ona McGovney, who has been in poor health for sometime, is quite uncomfortable at this writing.

Mrs. Anna Hirsch left last Saturday for Pampa, Florida.

Mrs. Wm. Archer and infant daughter, who has been named, Marie Sylvia, returned from the hospital Saturday.

Mrs. Kate Cooper spent Tuesday afternoon with relatives in Orland.

Miss Adeline Semmler was a guest of Miss Agnes Cole Tuesday evening when they attended the Christmas party of the Standard Bearers society in Joliet.

Don't miss the interesting and unusual type of party called Bingo, which will be held in St. Mary's hall in Mokena tonight, Dec. 11 at 8 o'clock. This is being sponsored by the young people of the St. Mary Catholic church of Mokena.

MOKENA SCHOOL NEWS

Primary Room—Quite a few pupils were excused early Friday afternoon to see Santa Clause's arrival in Joliet.

Intermediate Room—On the back board of this room are two drawings in colored chalk. One is a lighted Christmas tree and the other is of Santa going down the chimney. Both of the drawings were made by Russell Martin. All of the children enjoy them very much.

The room is very attractive with Christmas Candles, pictures, drawings and a small Christmas tree. Helen Egerton sold the most Christmas stamps in Mrs. Ferguson's room. She sold 84 stamps.

Jr. High Room—The pupils in this room are glad to have Ruth Lowe back to school.

Mrs. Cappel was very happily surprised last Monday morning when her last with a lovely magazine rack as a birthday gift.

High School room—The Freshmen are reading the Lady of the Lake and are making summaries on it.

The High School room is decorated with pictures of the month and Santa Claus.

The Sophomores are studying Julius Caesar and like it very much.

The Freshmen are studying Gravity in Physical Geography and are making reports on it.

There are some very interesting drawings on the eye by the Freshmen for Health.

HOW LONG CAN A THREE-QUARTER WIFE HOLD HER HUSBAND?

YOU have to work at marriage to make a success of it. Men may be selfish, unsympathetic, but that's the way they're made and you might as well realize it. When your back aches and your nerves scream, don't take it out on your husband. He can't possibly know how you feel.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

NEW LENOX

Around the Town

W. S. claims his sleep was more important than his date Sunday night so he went to bed. Just another heart broken.

Anyone met "Dishrag" and ("Toenail") yet? For an introduction you'll have to get in touch with D. P. and B. Mc. Seems as tho "Dishrag" and "Toenail" are new boyfriends.

A girl from Ridgewood claims to be going steady with E. P. of New Lenox. This created quite a lot of interest among the younger set—we wonder if it's true.

From what we hear R. S. and E. S. were victims of the school gang and made to ditch school the other morning, when a couple gals, A. O. and B. M. took them riding thru Pilcher Park in L. B.'s car. From all reports they went to Highland to the skating pond only forgot to go skating. J. F. was't in the gang, but would like to ask E. S. if the ice was cold.

Did L. A. of Joliet request the number "A Fine Romance" that was dedicated to him at Oh Henry Park, Saturday night? I'll say not! And was he surprised! Who's the guilty party?

Mrs. E. W. proud to be an excellent doctor while at their "Chat Awhile" club, Wednesday, according to Mrs. R. T.—only she claims, the cure was worse than the ailment.

A prize for the person that can find out who the nice looking gentleman is, that gave a large brown leather box of Snyder's candy to D. W. the other night. The candy was good and we all sampled it. But now the question is—who's the secret passion?

Believe it or not T. M. has fallen in love again—a big tall handsome brute this time from Joliet and all we know is, his name is Bill.

Mike, the popular German police pup, belonging to B. W. is exceptionally smart—thanks to its mistress—when he wants to get indoors, he merely knocks at the door with his tail and demands entrance. In fact he knocked on a tavern door Saturday night and rather frightened a few people.

M. M. made quite a hit with the piano player in Kay Kaiser's orchestra at the Trianon Friday night. It made no difference to him that M. was on a date nor the fact that he had his wife there. D. W. appeared to be tickled pink 'cause she had a chat with Arthur Wright, singer, and F. R. was all a flutter 'cause Virginia Simms also a singer with theorchestra, winked at him.

The staunch republican, Mr. L. W. still claims the democrat administration is all wet.

F. R. of Joliet is getting to be quite a frequent visitor in New Lenox. Watch out F. there's competition there and loves a funny thing.

The "Gables" restaurant in Joliet seems to be quite a hang out for the New Lenox younger set.

Can you imagine Married men, playing with children's toys, such as autos, trains, dolls etc. Actually they sat on the floor at the drug store and played all Sunday morning. These five men appeared to be having fun—John F.—Dick S.—Earl R.—Gilbert T.—Arvid S.—Wonder what their wives and children would say. Only one, J. F. of the five, happens to be single.

"D" claims its grand riding thru West Park when the roads are slippery. Must have been lots of fun Sunday night.

Ask E. M. what she told her boss when she quit work Sunday? "THE GANG."

Desert Iguana in Southwest

The desert iguana is found in the open country of our Southwest, especially among creosote bushes. It feeds on flowers and insects, says Nature Magazine. While it is not a small lizard, it does not compare in size to the large tropical members of this group.

ORLAND PARK SCHOOL NEWS

The pupils in the upper grade room are learning many Christmas carols, including those of many foreign lands. They plan to do some caroling about town on the evening of December 22, preceding the play which the high school will give that evening. They will also furnish the carols needed for the play, Dickens, "Christmas Carol."

These carols are under the direction of Miss Van Camp.

Jean Doyle returned to school this week, after an absence of nearly two weeks, due to an attack of bronchitis.

The pupils in the primary room are very proud of their sand table, depicting, "The Manger Scene." It is composed of a stable, made from real straw, and includes figures of the Holy Family, the Wise Men and cattle and sheep.

They are also making many interesting Christmas decorations, and their room is fast becoming a bower of Christmas decorations.

No True American Language

There is no distinct American language. The language spoken in the United States is English. There are phrases and expressions that are used exclusively in the United States that are called Americanisms, but the language is English. The American Indian tribes spoke many different languages; consequently none of those languages could be called the American language.

LUTH. LEADER
INDICTSGAMBLING
WITH SOULS

Indicting "professional gambling with souls" on the part of American leaders, Dr. Walter A. Maier, St. Louis, declared Sunday in an address on the Lutheran Hour Network: "The greatest problem that American culture has to face at the moment is not that of reemployment or of providing a program for rehabilitating our broken-down financial system, but that of quieting fears bred by spiritual insecurity in the hearts of distracted and bewildered masses."

"Clinics and hospitals are equipped to ameliorate and cure almost every disease that humanity is heir to; surgeons are able to perform the most delicate operations of the heart and the brain with complete assurance; modern techniques can make our acres, forests, factories and mines efficient enough to feed and clothe and shelter and outfit half the world; astronomers can chart the path of the stars in their courses for centuries in advance; but our people are for the most part given nothing more than a roulette-wheel philosophy by which to live their lives and instruct their souls."

"If men want to study birds and flowers, they can go to natural history museums; if they want information about books, they can find it in the public library which even the humblest hamlet boasts; if they want news, the great international news-gathering agencies and an efficient press are organized to provide it; if they want discussions of world problems, a dozen magazines have turned their columns into open forums; but for the problem of the heart and soul that agitate men and women of our day, there is no place to go except the church. When the Church departs from its task of proclaiming the Gospel to substitute anything else, it puts itself in the place of the cruel mother who meets her children's plea for bread with a handful of pebbles. Until the church awakes to its responsibilities and opportunities, any hope of abiding material prosperity is only a vain dream."

The Lutheran Hour is broadcast every Sunday afternoon by WCFL and the Mutual System at 3:30 p. m.

Alumni Meeting
To Be Held In
Joliet December 16

Alumni, friends, and former students of Illinois State Normal University in Will County will hold a dinner meeting at the Woodruff Hotel, Joliet, on December 16 6:30 p. m. Dr. R. W. Fairchild, President of Normal University will be the principal speaker. Dean H. H. Schroeder, Dr. C. A. DeYoung, Prof. C. A. Harper, Mrs. Katherine Carstairs Adolph, Prof. Elmer W. Cavins, and Mrs. Gertrude M. Hall, all from Normal, will attend the meeting.

Dr. Fairchild has spoken before many alumni groups during the past three years that he has been president of Normal University, but this is the first time that Will County alumni have arranged such a meeting. Dean Schroeder, Dr. DeYoung and Professor Harper are well known thruout the county since they have all three taught extension courses in Joliet.

The following alumni of I. S. N. U. are acting as a committee on arrangements: Dr. Marion K. Bowles, Miss Ruby Leslie, Mr. Frank O'Neal, Miss Miriam Waterbury, Mrs. Paul Mapes, Miss Gertrude Rosell, and Miss Miriam Manchester. Anyone desiring to attend the dinner can make reservations for a nominal fee by calling Joliet 2-6153 or by dropping a card to Miss Ruby Leslie, 112 Cochran Ave., Joliet, Ill., on or before December 14.

These statements are designed to expose communism in America and encourage its opposition by American citizens and groups. The protection and promotion of Americanism is one of the objectives of the nationwide program of the VFW for the current year.

"The basic principle of this government is religious tolerance and freedom, as well as freedom of speech and of the press." "To escape religious persecution, to obtain the right to worship God in their own way, the early colonists of the United States braved and endured untold hardships and dangers. The United States has always offered sanctuary to the various religious faiths. There is no coercion—no one is forced to practice religious observances. But an American citizen may and does follow his own desires and conscience. There are literally thousands of religious faiths and groups to which he may adhere, if he wishes or he may belong to none, if he prefers."

"The danger of communism is that it permits of no freedom. Under the rule of communism, should this country ever be so governed, all religious freedom would vanish. God and the church are the objects of special attack by communism. At the present time, more than 600 national movements and thousands of state and local branches are concentrating their attacks on the spread of atheism which would abrogate all laws enforcing Christian morals."

Anti-God theory and activity in the United States is only one of the many activities established by highly financed and powerfully organized radicals, socialists, communists and anarchists for the purpose of breaking down the moral fiber of the American people and at the same time destroying their patriotism and respect for organized government, law and order. We call for public support of the VFW program of Americanism which vigorously opposes un-American and subversive forces.

Distemper Symptoms

Distemper is the most common of all serious ailments of the dog. The early symptoms are a slight cough, fever, dry nose, loss of weight and appetite, hot skin and a tendency to sleep. Later discharge from the eyes and nose, quick breathing and general inertia follow.

Pickled Pine

Pickled pine is pine which has been subjected to a chemical treatment which ages it and gives to the wood surface something of the soft patina of old pine or "deal" from which the paint has been stripped. Pine was used for room interiors and furniture in England in the Eighteenth century, but it was never left in its natural state. For room paneling it was painted; for furniture—bookcases, cupboards and furniture—it was also painted, and for mirror frames, for which it was often used because it was easily carved, it was either painted or gilded.

RELIGIOUS FAITH THE TARGET OF COMMUNISM.

The rising tide of communism in the United States must be combated by religious as well as patriotic groups and individuals if its dangers are to be averted. Communism attacks religion and religious belief. It not only advocates but it enforces atheistic teachings.

Hays, Kans.—A statewide movement to enact legislation which will seek to curb the serious increase in the destruction of life and property is spurred on daily by such sordid scenes of truck and motor car disasters as shown above.

In this head-on collision ten miles west of Hays the occupant of the motor car was killed and the truck driver received serious bruises and cuts. In every community there is developing a determined effort to regulate speed, size of trucks, more rigid inspection of brakes, lights and other equipment and more equitable taxation for the upkeep of state highways.

Wait Long for Cremation

It is not unusual for a Dutch family to sell all its property to defray the cost of cremation of the father, to meet the heavy cost in their country. A poor family will scrimp and save for years to provide funds for the ceremonial cremation of a member. Meanwhile, a corpse often reposes in a village graveyard for years waiting the accumulation of the necessary funds. Expense of cremation is sometimes reduced to a minimum by co-operative or mass cremations, at which 50 or 100 bodies are burned in one grand ceremony, and the expense divided pro rata.

Again America
Shows the Way

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

Throughout much of its history our American Republic has served as a model to various nations determined to supplant the evils of Rule by the Few, with the benefits of Government by the People.

Today it continues to offer, by example, a chart to the path that leads toward peace and progress.

Contrasting pictures from the latest screen of world affairs tell the story.

While the Fascist and Communist states of Europe are expanding and refurbishing their machinery of War, the United States is following the opposite course.

Its highest officials are meeting with those of neighbor nations in a determined effort to oil the Machinery of Peace.

While Spain is attempting to invalidate the ballots of popular election with the bullets of rebellion, America follows its traditional way.

It is submerging political differences, while winners and losers alike seek effective methods of cooperation in the cause of reemployment and recovery.

There stand two striking contrasts, which the detractors of America and of the American way of doing things might do well to study.

There wait two convincing answers to those fervid propagandists who tell us to look to the Fascism or the Communism of Europe, instead of to the representative democracy of the United States, for guidance in our national life.

America looked within—and not abroad—when it won and established a form of Government by the People that became a model for the oppressed of all lands.

America can still demonstrate that that form of government does more to assure national growth and international concord than any of the desperate experiments which now trouble Europe.

Will Rogers'
Humorous Story

By WILL ROGERS

SOMETIMES college boys and girls are somewhat inconsiderate. They forget that they have fathers and mothers when they return to their homes for a rest.

I heard about one proud father of a prize scholar from one of the state universities. Yesterday this father met a prize-fighter on the street, and the pug says, "Oh, hello! Say, your son, John, is looking fine, ain't he? Seen him at the fight last night. Home for a rest, ain't he?"

"Well," says the dad, kinda confused, "I reckon he is, if you seen him. If you see him again tonight, please tell him to look me up before he goes back to school. I got some dough for him."

Humorous Story

By WILL ROGERS

HERE'S a good soldier story. It would be a good story under any circumstances but I first heard it as a tale of a crack English military company.

An officer was court-martialed for being drunk. The evidence against him was overwhelming. There was only one witness appeared in his defense, an Irish sergeant.

"Do you remember the night of the tenth?"

"I do, sorr."

"Do you remember the accused officer coming back to his quarters?"

"I do, sorr."

"Was he intoxicated?"

"He was not, sorr."

"Was he sober, perfectly sober?"

"He was, sorr."

"How did you know he was sober?"

"By the way he kept on telling me to call him early in the morning."

"Oh, he told you to call him early, did he? Why did he want you to call him early? Did he give any reason?"

"He did, sorr. He said he was to be Queen of the May, sorr!"

"Why, yes, Gus," admitted Bull, haltingly but good-naturedly, "I believe you did."

"You believe I did!" echoed Van Tammel, enraged. "How did she get a horse out of my corral?"

"Why, she come down here to get her pony up herself—so I helped her a little."

The veins in Van Tammel's huge neck swelled. Grabbing Bull by the powerful hands, he fastened his iron fingers on the old man's throat and choked him pitilessly, pouring on him as he did so a torrent of curses heard by Quong, who ran to the kitchen door to listen.

Only by struggling for his very life was Bull able to wriggle free from the deadly grip. In doing so, he fell backward to the ground, scrambled to his feet, and ran into the barn.

It was inside the barn that Bull's voice was heard by the China boy begging for mercy. "Why, Gus," he urged, "Jane's a nice girl. Don't take it so hard. I've worked for you a good many years, off an' on. You always found me honest, didn't you?"

Van Tammel uttered no word. He had pursued Bull to the farthest corner of an empty stall and, filled with silent, murderous rage, caught up a broken wagon stake and swung it over his head. "Don't hit me with that, Gus," cried the frightened man. A low, fearful imprecation from Van Tammel answered him.

"Now I'll give you what's comin' to you!"

"Why, Gus, you ain't a-goin' to kill me!"

Grunting and mad for blood, Van Tammel struck at the cowboy and rained blow after blow on him till he sank to the floor. Then, suddenly, he dropped the stake and, bespattered with blood, staggered out of the barn and over to the house. Quong, watching stealthily, fled in terror for town.

In the cubbyhole office of McAlpin's livery barn in Sleepy Cat, Sawdy, Bob Scott, and McAlpin sat on three stools, silent and absorbed in a three-cornered bout at poker. The frightened Quong, trotting and walking from Gunlock and crossing the bridge, reached McAlpin's in pitiable condition. Throwing his hands against the glass-paneled office door, he burst in and fell sprawling almost on top of the intent players.

The gamblers jumped to their feet. McAlpin broke into angry exclamation: "What the devil! Can't we have a friendly game in my own quarters without a drunken bum chargin' in on us head first?"

Sawdy, less intent on saving his money and chips, had turned Quong partly over. "It's a chink, boys. There must be a tong war on."

Bob Scott, coolest of the trio, bent to scan the intruder's features.

"Who is it, Bob?" exclaimed McAlpin.

"It's Quong, the cook out at Gunlock, boys, if I'm not mistaken—'an' from his breathin', I guess he's run all the way in. Must be somethin' doin' up at Gunlock."

Laid out on the hostler's little bunk, Quong's eyes opened and closed.

"What is it, Quong? What's wrong?" asked Scott.

With his eyes popping from his head, Quong managed to form a word: "Bull!" he exclaimed, hoarse and panting. "Bull Page!"

"What, Quong?"

"Bull Page!"

"He says Bull Page," explained Scott. "What's a matter with Bull, Quong?"

Quong's eyes rolled in terror. "Gus."

"Who?"

"Gus."

"Yes, Gus—what about Gus?"

"He kill him."

"What do you mean? Bull killed Gus? No!"

"Gus kill Bull."

"Who told you that, Quong?"

"I see ownself, Gus kill Bull."

"Well, I'll be damned," exclaimed Sawdy. "It looks like a straight story, boys. That why you run into town, Quong?"

The China boy nodded.

The trio consulted together. A team was hitched to a three-seated democrat wagon, Quong was helped into it, and with McAlpin driving, the four set out for the jail to pick up Bill Pardaloe. Pardaloe was in bed. They roused him out and drove over to the hotel to pick up Doctor Carpy.

Two hours later the party halted before the dark, silent ranch house at Gunlock.

In the stall farthest from the door they found Van Tammel's victim. Incredible as the possibility seemed to Carpy, poor Bull, left alone, had dragged himself out of the stall and lay on his back.

Carpy held a lantern over him. His face and head had been battered almost beyond recognition.

"He's close to dead, boys," exclaimed Carpy, low-voiced, to his companions. "Get him to the kitchen. While I'm working with him, look for Van Tammel."

They carried Bull to the kitchen door. Scott entered carefully and, groping in the dark, struck a match and lighted the lamp. Bull, breathing stertorously, was laid on the table.

Pardaloe tried the door leading to the dining room. It was locked. He rapped on it. He rapped again loudly, but the summons brought no reply.

"Stand to one side, Bob," murmured Pardaloe. "I'm goin' to bust it."

He threw his shoulder against the door. As it crashed open, Pardaloe, followed by Scott, walked into the dining room. The door to the living room stood open. This room, inspected, revealed no sign of disturbance.

Of the two bedroom doors opening off this room, the door, one leading to Van Tammel's bedroom, was closed. Setting the lamp on the table in the middle of the room, Pardaloe knocked on Van Tammel's door and, getting no reply, tried it. The door was locked.

Pardaloe called out, "If you're in there, Gus, unlock your door. I'm here to talk with you." Pardaloe awaited in silence a response from within; there was none.

Pardaloe threw himself into the door. It gave so easily that he stumbled across the threshold.

The bedroom was dark. Scott rekindled the lamp. Pardaloe held it above his head and, followed by Scott, walked into the bedroom.

They saw the huge figure of a man lying across the bed. Pardaloe, passing the lamp to his companion, put his hand on the man's shoulder, saw that he was unconscious, and peering closer, turned the face toward him. It was Van Tammel.

"Call Carpy, quick, Bob," muttered Pardaloe. "He's unconscious."

When Carpy stalked into the room, Sawdy with him, the doctor, aided by his companion, turned the body partly over and examined it.

"Doctor!" She Exclaimed Faintly, "He's Dead!"

"How is he, Doc?" whispered Pardaloe.

"Dead."

Already seized by the excruciating pain that cost him his life, Van Tammel had left his victim and staggered in his distress to the house.

"It was a quick call, boys," said Carpy to those around him.

Transfixed by agony, the cruel features could not be softened.

"Nothing more to be done here," said Carpy in the living room. "Take Bull over to the bunkhouse now and lay him on his bed."

The clatter of hoofs was heard in the yard. "It's the boys back from town," said Sawdy, looking through the window. Carpy turned to Pardaloe. "Go out and tell them what's happened, and not to touch a thing until after the coroner comes out."

Doctor Carpy came into breakfast next morning. Jane, who had finished her breakfast, rallied him, as she rose.

"I am late," he admitted.

"Night work?"

He nodded.

Standing beside the table, she was looking over the newspaper. He put his arm around her.

"Sit down a minute, Jane. I've something to say to you. News for you."

She blanched a bit. "About Bill, Doctor?" she asked anxiously.

"Not a thing in the world about Bill. It's—about your father."

"Oh, I know he's terribly angry!"

Carpy shook his head. "Not now, Jane. He's not angry with anybody now."

"Doctor! What do you mean? Have you seen him?"

He nodded. "Yes, last night. You know how sick a man he's been—"

"Doctor!" she exclaimed faintly. "He's dead!"

"He died last night."

She hid her face in his arm and broke into tears.

"Jane, your father had lived his life—there was nothing for him to look ahead to."

"This makes a great change in your life, girl. I guess I'll take you up to the hospital. Bill must know this. Now I've got good news for you and no fooling. You have a big surprise and a happy one coming at the hospital. I took the bandages off Bill's eyes yesterday to examine them—and his eyes are much better. If we can only hold it now!"

CHAPTER XIII

Bull Page was only a broken cowboy, but Bull was loved in Sleepy Cat. Yet even resentment at the name of Van Tammel in Sleepy Cat was softened somewhat when men heard of Jane's unremitting attention at Bull's side in the hospital. Van Tammel was buried. McCrossen took charge.

To Jane's infinite relief, Bull recovered and went back to Gunlock.

At the ranch there was an air of cheer when Jane was installed; everybody on tiptoe to render service. McCrossen was especially eager to please.

"Well, Jane, I guess you know whatever I can do to take care of things is goin' to be done, twenty-four hours a day if need be," he said. "All you have to do is to leave it to me."

"I shall depend on you for everything," she returned.

"Everything, Jane?" he echoed, smiling as if to invite a confidence.

Jane was not caught. "Everything connected with running the ranch," she said evenly.

But it became increasingly evident as the days went by that the energetic foreman still regarded himself as a suitor.

For a fortnight nothing further occurred to break the routine of ranch work, and McCrossen said no more. The general impression in town was that Denison, as far as Jane was concerned, was out of the running. Jane, it was argued, would never marry a blind man, and the consensus of gossip was that Bill's sight was gone.

No excitement occurred in Sleepy Cat until one day John Lefever was reported arrived at Thief River with a herd of cattle for the reservation. Sawdy, who had gone to work at Gunlock when Lefever left for Texas, rode down to Thief River to help Lefever check the herd in at Gunlock Agency and to give him the big Sleepy Cat news.

But Lefever, too, brought news. The two cronies sat down to compare notes and celebrate the end of a long drive.

"I want to tell you somethin' I ran into nearin' Thief River," said Lefever. "There's a little slaughterin' ranch a mile south of town run by our old friend, Clubfoot, the butcher—remember how he skinned us on the horse race? While our herd was headin' for the river, I stopped for a few minutes where a couple of his boys were loadin' a wagon with hides for shipping. I happened to know one of the boys. He wrangled for us, comin' up once. And I noticed all the hides I saw him tyin' up had a Gunlock brand."

"How's this?" I says. "Does Van Tammel peddle his steers down this way?" He winked at me an' laughed. 'This bunch,' says he, 'was poker steers.'"

"It looks like McCrossen is runnin' off Gunlock cattle to pay his poker debts," said Sawdy.

When Lefever had made his delivery, he marched with Sawdy up to the hospital to call on their disabled side partner, Denison.

Bill had been promoted from a dark room to a shaded one.

"If I knew I was going to lose my eyes, boys," said he, "that would be one thing. I could end it all or settle down to making baskets for a living. But Doc keeps telling me he's going to save my eyes; and that keeps me hopin'—so the days and weeks hang on. All the same, it's tough, when you never were laid up before in your life. What's the news with you fellows?"

The visitors talked about the discovery Lefever had made of the hides at Thief River.

The half-blind ranchman listened intently, not with any noticeable excitement. But Sawdy imagined he could see Denison lighting up.

"Seem' you're not fixed up just right yet, is there anything you'd like us to do about it?" Sawdy asked.

"Why, yes, there is—just do one thing."

"What's that?"

"Keep your mouths shut till I get out of here. I guess you both know I've got a long score to settle with that bird. He was mixed up in burning up my ranch house and burning me up. I'll attend to McCrossen myself some day," he repeated slowly, "in my own way."

The two men left the hospital somewhat uneasy. They laid their story before Carpy.

The doctor heard it unmoved. "Well," he commented, "that's not the first bunch of steers McCrossen has stolen—and it won't be the last."

"Not the first," interjected Lefever. "But it's the closest anybody ever came to nalin' it on him."

"Anyway, I don't think he should be left there to rob the girl right along," added Carpy.

"Are you goin' to tell her?" asked Lefever.

"I am; today. She's coming to town and will be in to see me."

They told him of their talk with Denison. "It left us leery, Doc," said Sawdy. "If Bill gets worked up too strong over McCrossen, he's liable to bust out on McCrossen before his eyes are in shape to give him an even break."

Doctor Carpy waved his hand. "Keep your worry for something else, Sawdy. His eyes got scorch'd; but when I let go of the boy, keep away from the small end of his gun."

"Jane, you'll think I don't bring you anything but troublesome news," the doctor began. "But this isn't really news. I've known for months—two or three years, in fact—that McCrossen was stealing Gunlock steers. But this is what John Lefever brought up from Thief River today. . . .

"Now, there's nothing to get excited about," observed Carpy, after he had finished the story, "for it's nothing new. But if I were you I would get rid of McCrossen."

(TO BE CONTINUED)

HOW'RE YOU BETTING

THOSE loose old days, before betting was considered illegal, brought considerable wagering on the results of presidential campaigns—the amounts at stake frequently totalling millions.

It was back in that era, 1908 to be specific, that brokers making book on the election actually recorded 60,000 to 1 against the chances of one of the candidates. The long shot entry was Eugene V. Debs, perennial Socialist candidate.

That same campaign demonstrated that the professional odds-layers knew considerable about their business. In September, 1908, Taft was the 2 to 1 favorite over Bryan; by October the odds lengthened to 3 to 1 and on election day Taft's chances were rated at 8 to 1, with few takers.

Anyone who believes the professional wagers are infallible should thumb back the record to 1916 when it is estimated from five to ten million dollars changed hand on the result.

Wilson and Hughes were the leading contenders, with Wilson on the inside track because he was up for re-election. In September, 1916, the financial district in New York was betting 2 to 1 on Hughes. In October the odds were 10 to 7 and even money was placed the day of election.

Closeness of the contest, in doubt for days until California returns moved into the Wilson column, perhaps was excuse for the error in judgment by the financiers.

They may be wrong again in 1936 but perhaps it would be well for readers to confine themselves to freak bets, if any at all are made. Perhaps the most ingenious of these occurred in that same 1916 election.

A man, apparently three sheets in the wind, strolled into a commissioner's office, bet $5 he could name 20 states Wilson would carry. He then bet $10 he could name ten additional states. Then he offered $20 he could name still another 10 states.

"And now," he announced, "here's $50 says I can name eight states more for Wilson."

When the rush to take him subsided, the better, miraculously sobered, named his states. The "pitch" of his game was that he reserved eight states of the solid South as the block on which the $50 wager was laid. He could not fail to win at least $15!

ALLISON OF IOWA

FIRST honors for "coming close" to the presidency, although he is minus even the standing of an "also-ran," must be awarded William B. Allison of Iowa.

Allison's doubtful honor came to him at the Republican convention of 1888, which ended finally with the nomination of Benjamin Harrison, later elected President.

Delegates to the convention had balloted ineffectually for several candidates when a four-hour recess was taken to permit a counting of noses. Delegates from New York, Illinois, California, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Iowa and Missouri, went into conference.

Representatives from each of these states were practically empowered to act for the entire state delegation. Senator Hoar of Massachusetts spoke in favor of Allison of Iowa after several of the candidates had been discussed. It was finally agreed that Allison's fitness for the high job was apparent and that he should get the support of the conferring states.

New York state had been represented, however, by only three of its four delegates-at-large. The three who agreed on Allison failed to reckon with their absent colleague, Chauncey Depew, the rapier-worded president.

Depew was president of a railroad at the time. He had been supported as a candidate but was forced to withdraw because of farm belt opposition to the railroads. Much of the opposition to him had come from Iowa and so he turned thumbs-down on Allison.

Subsequent events proved that if Depew had not balked, the conferring states would have nominated Allison and he would have been elected President in place of Harrison.

The ironical part of this personal catastrophe is that Allison's stature measured fully as high as the job demanded. He had moved out to Iowa as a young lawyer, served eight years in the lower house of congress and, beginning in 1872, was a United States senator from the Tall Corn state for an unbroken period of 35 years.

Britain Traces 1776 Failure

The British attribute their failure in our Revolution to the fact that, according to them, it was largely a naval war and the English fleet lacked its usual dash and enterprise. Their armies failed on land for want of proper support from the sea and Yorktown's surrender was due to the actual, if temporary, loss of the command of the sea, with Paul Jones harrying the English at their own doors.

Keeping Christmas Faith—

Spirit of Happiness Much Needed in the Days Prior to the Festival

WHATEVER you do in the way of preparations for Christmas, be sure to preserve the happy Christmas spirit in the home. Nothing is more at war with the atmosphere of Merry Christmas than cross words, wrangles, disputes, and anything that mars good nature in yourselves or those in the home. The pressure of work, the haste that makes waste, the beauty of home life, the conflict of problems, each of which seems imperative to solve on the instant, are not conducive to an atmosphere of concord. It takes a person of remarkable poise not to be influenced by the speeding up of work and activities prior to the festival.

Personal Influence

Because this is true, every one of us should be on guard over ourselves. We have an influence. No one can escape this. It may do us good to realize that we are not totally insignificant. Many persons feel this is their fate when they are very modest or shy, and crave to be among the group of those who attract attention. By the negative method of induction we can discover our influence is not negligible. It exists, perhaps to our surprise, and certainly to our dismay, when we see the effects of our disagreeable conduct.

Beneficent Effects

It is a comfort to realize that in reverse order, the better side of our nature is equally impressive. Our good nature, our cheery attitude, our soothing words, and our hearty happiness leave their beneficent effect upon those who know us—our family, our friends, and even those who are but acquaintances.

Quality Called For

It is this fine attitude that is brought out in the real Christmas spirit. It is one that is needed in the rush before Christmas as much as on the day itself. Our patience and such sweetness of temperament as we are by nature endowed, or by cultivation possessed of, is called into action to help keep atmosphere serene when there is a trend toward querulousness in children, or adults. Little folk are quick to sense strain and tenseness, and they react to it by nervousness and contrariness, and an atmosphere of love and beauty is harshly disturbed.

Keeping Faith

On the adults falls the responsibility of keeping faith with Christmas by showing the Christmas spirit in these days of expectations of holiday happiness, and preparation for the great festival.
